Re: U.S. Patent Application for:
REVERSE CANTILEVER ASSEMBLY FOR INPUT DEVICES
Docket No.: PJ0101US

Dear Pete:

Enclosed for your review is a final draft of the above-referenced patent application, including written description, figures, and claims, prepared in light of your comments on the prior draft. Please carefully review this patent application, and, if you believe no further changes are necessary, please sign and date the enclosed Declaration and return both documents to me. If you believe further changes are necessary, please call me to discuss the appropriate procedure for entering those changes. It is important that you do not alter either document after signing the Declaration. Of course, if you subsequently discover necessary changes I can provide you with a new Declaration to sign and date. However, once we file the patent application with the U.S. Patent Office no new matter may be added. In some instances even deletion of portions of the specification might be considered new matter. However, correction of minor typographical or obvious errors are typically permitted.

You should treat this application as confidential information; however, it will be published approximately 18 months from the filing date. It is quite possible that you will not receive a substantive response from the U.S. patent examiner before the application is published. As we discussed, you can request non-publication at the time the application is filed if you do not intend to file abroad. Similarly, certain portions of the as-filed specification may be redacted from the published application if those portions of the specification would not be required in a foreign patent application. If you request non-publication and subsequently decide to file abroad, the U.S. Patent Office must be timely notified or the U.S. patent application we become abandoned. Please let me know if you would like to request non-publication or would like to redact any portion of the patent application before publication.

Please do not hesitate to call me at 591-0789 if you have any questions.

Sincerely,

Scott Hewett
